

12th International BUILDAIR-Symposium

Airtight Buildings • Thermography • Ventilation Systems

April 16, 2021

Ladies and Gentlemen,

measuring airtightness in single and multi-family houses is no longer a challenge, but how can it be done with clean rooms or high-rise buildings? If you are interested in questions like this, then you should definitely attend – the 12th International BUILDAIR Symposium. Three contributions show different aspects of testing high-rise buildings, provide information on theoretical principles and report on practical experience..

As you know, leakages are very important for the airtight building envelope. On Friday afternoon we want to take a closer look at it and ask provocatively whether and under what conditions leakages can be tolerated. After introductory lectures by Klaus Vogel and Ulf Köpcke, hopefully an intensive discussion will develop. This time you can ask your questions during the presentations. Online conferences also have benefits ...

Speaking of online conference. In this format, too, all presentations will be translated simultaneously, as you are used to from the meetings in Hanover, Kassel, Stuttgart, and so on. And you can also have face-to-face discussions at the virtual symposium: During the breaks and on Friday evening, the BuildairLounge opens, where you can meet, talk to each other and – if you have your camera switched on – also see each other.

Look forward to two inspiring days – and we look forward to welcoming you.

Kind regards
Sabine Schneider
on behalf of the organising team
